Sweating Out The Summer

Polar Bears suffered from the heat

I tossed and turned all night. I knew better than to stay up all night and "Watch the stars come out" with Jerry Lewis yesterday, but I did it anyway. Now the alarm would be tinging in an hour and I hadn't slept — at all.

Actually, I think it was my nerves. In between chimes of the hall clock, a fear kept nagging at me — the First Day of School Phobia. Eleven years of school behind me, and I still spent half of the summer worrying about it. Oh, sure I went to Myrtle Beach and camp and cut grass all the time, but nevertheless the inevitable haunted me.

I swam, rode my bicycle, watched television, slept until the crack of noon, and still the rear returned. But I knew I didn't have as much to fear as the people who didn't do much "over the summer."
How I pitied them!

Picture this: the first day of school (first period, even) and the English teacher says "All right, I want you to write a 2½-3 pages thesis on what you did this summer." Asaah!! The people who had nothing to write were condemned, but most students didn't have that problem Just as I had, 71 percent of surveyed students went on a vacation, and 31 percent held jobs.

Maybe I wouldn't need to worry about the first day of school. After all, it's a good excuse for buying some new clothes! I'm sad anyway, because I still haven't fallen asleep and there are only forty-five minutes of summer left'

A Test, Today?

Students Dread the Four-letter Word

The last minute panic finally strikes. Your palms begin to sweat No one will help you or even nod a ves 'or 'no." What can you do? What causes this type of situation?

Ever find yourself feeling that same way? Tests gave many that panicky feeling. The solution for this panic was to study. If one had Phase III English teacher Linda Pinnell for class, he didn't have to worthy about tests.

habits. The kids learn the rules and it shows in their writing. On test tome fall apart and forget every thing, "expressed Pinnell. The first semester she tried a new method. No tests! She taught the rules to the students and had a worksheet for each of the different rules. "It did no damage to the writing skill. and also took the pressure off," concluded.

Teachers had certain test patterns which they used. They chose so many fill in-the-blanks, a hand ful of true-talse, a senes of matching and occasionally a few essay questions. Students didn't have any choice in the kind of questions asked on tests. When 22 students were asked their choice, several responses were given

Ten students favored multiple choice Senior Tony Gerdes admitted that Multiple choice gives you a choice of answers where true-talse only gives you a 50-50 chance of getting it (the answer) right Matching was next with five votes and true-false only received three votes. Next came a tie with fill-in the blank and no test at all which received two votes Essay tests were not to the considered and had zero votes.

When it came right down to it every time one went to class, it seemed there was a test of some kind. For freshmen and juniors there were the annual aptitude tests and for seniors the ACT and SAT tests. Even at letes had to pass a test... a physical

Students just beared the tests and then went home to the some kind of relaxation. But sometimes the minute they hit the front door Mom escorted them up to their rooms and gave them a test which was sometimes difficult to pass.

Time Out from Tedious Training

Cafeteria tables lined the walls of the gym, with department chairmen and student helpers seated behind signs reading English, Science, Business and so forth. As students clutching approved schedule slips trickled in, they hurried to register for classes with friends or easy electives before class rolls filled.

Even the earliest schedulers were required to sign up for certain courses. English, Biology, Math and Social Studies had to be worked in by everyone. Students dreaded the monotony of paper atter paper, imagining the standard reports, reading problems and tests they would have to face over the next year.

It wasn't a ways so hum-drum. however First year teacher Dennis Hermosilla brought a new twist to his American Studies and World

Cultures Classes, his students earned tolk dances from India Hunkary Mexico, and Italy "I thought WC would be boring, but it turned out to be fun!" exclaimed Jana Lamb. Joe Naternicola's American studies classes piaved games such as "Family Feud" and "baseball' to study for tests

Money Makes the World Go 'Round

Money - the almighty dollar definitely does make the world go round. Three Ingredients That Make a Staff

Any artist knows that a great masterpiece requires time experience and age. Any journalistic masterpiece required the same ingredients.

Prom (p) and Circumstances

Early Prom Cut Short

When Eastern Standard Time took effect the last Sunday in October, no one seemed to mind the extra hour of sleep. But when Daylight Sav as Time robbed students of an hour which could have been spent enjoying the Junior-Senior Prom, feelings differed

Since April 2 - as an early date for prom, it was a 'ot barder to find a goun, plus you didn't have a chance to get a tan Monica Dublin stated You could notice the sleep lost at prom picnic

Yet, the time change wasn't the only problem effecting the annual event. Temperatures plummeting to 35 degrees didn t with spring lashions. "All I had was a chiffon hawl to wear and it did not go well with the weather I was freez " declared Pam Turner

Inside the FSC Ballroom, approximately 100 couples didn't seem too concerned with time of temperature With Winte Lace and Roses as the theme and Wisp providing the music, students wit assed the coronation of Queen Shari Retton

Under the supervision of Linda Pinnell, junior class adviser, and Susan Julian, class president, juniors worked to complete roses of 8-foot cardboard, covered with colored tissue paper. Light was reflected through the decorations giving the Husson of stained glass

Adding to the prom adventure students traveled to various dining places such as Jim Reid 5 in Clarksburg, the Flame in Morgantown, Tiffany Room and Caesar-s Supper Club in Fairmont to make their evening complete.

Following an eventful night trips with frisbees and radios were made to favorite picnic areas such as Audra State Park. North Bend. Seneca Rocks and Cooper's Rock for prom picnic

Although couples had to deal with low temperatures and a time change these circumstances didnot interfere with enjoying the pomp of an early prom despite the circum stances

Language Honoraries Exemplify Excellence

It may have been Greek for others, but for some students it was Latin, Spanish or French. After one year of any language, a student could be accepted into an honorary provided that grades were accepted. These classes may have been difficult on confusing at times, but some colleges required a year of a time gn language for admission.

The Latin Club inducted approximately 10 people into Latin Honorary by means of a small induction party held in Julia Shaw's room. Here, the honor group provided the organization with higher goals which kept a member in inved and interested.

In Spanish Club, the main event of the year was the Spanish Fiesta.

This provided a change for all three languages to set worked no var ety of activities. This event could be fifth and sixth periods which also gave the students an opportunity to recognize foreign costumes.

Because some feel a way age was difficult to learn, being in an honorary was a special relognition. These clubs were not service clubs which helped others, but clubs which recognized students who excelled in a foreign language.

County Calendars Provide Historical View of Area

History ran deep in Marion County, from hometown celebrities to the story behind the Monongahela River to the history of coal For this reason, the Journalism Department produced Marion County Historical Calendars to honor a bit of the area's heritage

Published by members of Quill and Scroll, the calendar explored the area through pictures and articles written by the students. Each month went in depth on different facets of the county including Prickett's Fort, the Francis Pierpont story, covered bridges, famous homes, author John Knowles, and how various incorporated towns received their names. Also featured were stories of coal and its role in the county, religion and various churches and Appalachian foiktore.

To create an antique look, the calendars were printed on ivory colored paper in brown ink. All the pictures and artwork assumed an axed look because of the printing method

Journalism adviser Ron Botam commented. The calendars were unique in that they provided a historical view of the area in which we live They weren't the type of calendar which would be destroyed at the end of the year because they were actually collectors' items.

Information for the calendars was obtained from the Marion County Historical Society with the cooperation of Joanne Cimaglia, president; Paul Powers, Joyce McVicker, The Times-West Virginian, Jim and Irene Martin, Ryland White, The Marion County Centennial Yearbook and "Now and Long Ago" by Glenn Lough

Wallman Competes In Democracy Event

Abraham Lincoln, Patrick Henrs, Confucious and Mark Wallman are all noted for their words of wisdom

One of these men, Walman competed in the Voice of Democracy essay competition against nine other students on the high school level and Calvary Christian on the local eve. Wal man was awarded $75 for his essay titled. My Commitment To My Country."

The Voice of Democracy competition was a National Broadcast Script writing program designed to give high school students the opportunity to voice their opinions via the broadcasting media

My speech was about democracy in a way to inspire patriotism of my country, higher education and the introduction of the traditional beliefs," Wallman explained Wallman also stated that the essay was a requirement in his speech class

Knisely Top Scorer In National Math Test

Some students fought the yawns which threatened to destroy conctration, others fiddled with pencils, compasses and rulers as they waited for the test to begin, yet others stared at the cateteria clock, desperately trying to remember obscure formulas, and theorems which might help them. The cause for all this frustration? The National Math Lest, given March 10

While taking the exam was, of course. A good experience, it did little to encourage students able to answer only one question on the 30-part examination. It was a lot harder than I expected," admitted Kristi Dodge.

As top scorer, John Knisen earned an 85 point total. His points, as well as 77 each from second placers. Anne Bomar and Ed Hanway, were combined in the school total of 239. This number, up 24 from last year, gave Fairmont Senior third place ranking among schools in West Virginia.

Bomar Participates In Senior Youth Program

Armed force escorts trailed her and 99 others. They listened to as many as 10 speakers a day and each was awarded $1,500 in the end. The lace? Washington, DC. The event? The US Senate Youth Program. The participants? Anne Bomar and two students from each state.

To participate in the week-long program, Bomar took a civics test and was interviewed in Charleston After being chos, she traveled to Washington, DC where she visited President Ronald Reagan, Vice President George Bush and Senators

As part of the Senate Youth Program, Bomar and each participating student won a $1,500 William Randough Hearst Scholarship for social studies courses. Also attending from West Virginia was Shelly Poetrom University High in Morgantown

Savings Bonds Issued To Essay Winners

Probably one of the farthest thoughts in high school students minds was owning property, right? For students of Phase IV English, though, the prospect of property laws, jargon and objectives surfaced when they were required to write essays on the subject

Sponsored by the Fairmont Board of Reactors, the contest was judged at the sophomore, junior and senior levels. Winners of $50 savings bonds included Doug Dollson, Jill Tracy Koppel and Anne Bomar, who were recognized at a luncheon at the Fairmont Field Club April 24.

The theme of the essay was How the Freedom to Own Property Will Affect My Future

Mrs. Edie Ann Wisson, local realtor with Ctury 2 visited Phase TV classes and familiarized students with the property industry

Art Exhibit Features Work of Senior Student

Art was a way of expressing my emotions. My work was me, so when my art was chosen to represent the chool in Charleston. I felt as if I myself was there," explained Tricia. Yanero when her art work was displayed at the Cultural Center in Charlestor.

Don Stevens, art teacher, submitted Yanero's paper cutting silhouette, which was chosen to represent the school in the second annua. Art Youth Month exhibit in March One person from every county in the state was chosen to display their art

Yanero was also a contributing art editor to H.-L.fe, the schools

Monica Dublin Named NHS Scholarship Winner

I was very benered and proud, explained Monica Dublin, winner of the National Honor Society Award

Dublin was one of 25 students from around the United States who won this scholarship award for $1 000, which wal be used at the college she attends

To be eligible for this award, Dublin had to send in a list of her hours spent and jobs performed arod the school. From this information and a personal interview. Dubliwas chosen. Another student who received the scholarship was Vickie Dodd. North Marion senior.

Tracey Weaver Crowned Miss TEEN West Virginia

A feeting arouses every September when the Miss American contest is watched by thousands of viewers. This dream actually came true when Tracey Weaver was crowned Miss TI IN West Virginia 1981

Each participant was judged on scholastic achievement, volunteer service, a talent or speech presentation of two minutes, poise, personality and an interview with seven judges. A scrapbook entitled, "My Life" was a nonessential aspect of the pageant

Weaver performed a modern jazz

dee to fame, submitted 280.5 volunteer hours and entered a scrapbook for the competition

Weaver won the volunteer service award, first place scrapbook and the overall pageant itself. Winning a $1,000, a gown from Delmar's, an all-expense paid trip to Albequerque, New Mexico, personalized queen's stationery, a crown, a banner, an 11 x 14 photo, a Miss TEEN logo jacket and two trophies, Weaver's dream beg when she advanced to national competition in Albequerque.

Some labeled it a rebuilding year; we called it turning a new leaf. The Bears finished with downbeat seasons in most every sport. The fans believed it when the team fell short at the buzzer and Coach Bill Lawson said, "We just stunk."

The despair could have been linked to injuries and illness, as with the cross country team, but there was no avoiding it — the spark just wasn't there.

With rebuilding symptoms present -- new coaches, lack of stars -- we knew the real fate. We'd just have to wait for the tide to turn.

Regional Runners

The pre-season looked very confident with the return of two-time All-Stater Eric Price and returning lettermen Pat Davis. Mike Riley and Jay Vangilder," admitted Coach Forn Dragich. With the help of promising newcomers Gary Chestock. Chud Doiltson, Thomas Sanders, Mark Caldwell and Brian Martyn, Price stated. I unbelier able, how tough we were "

Then it happened. Price was unable to run in the first meet due to a knee injury. The team still managed to come out on top. Dragich proudly announced, "When Price was burt. Das led the way."

After placing third in the Big Ten, next came the most important contest - the Region II championship in Morgantown. The team came home the champions by placing five runners in the top ten

That u . the best race all year, admitted Price after returning home

By state meet time, the tide began to turn against West. Due to Price's recurring diness, and the team's fatigue, the best the team could do was a ninth place win

Dragich attributed health to the team's success and fadure. "When Price was healthy and able to run, we were a good cross country team, as evidenced by a first place finish in the Regionals. When he was unable to run we were an average leam (Onfessed Dragich at the end of the ระสรกก

Kardiac Kids

Even though football wasn't the sport, we had our own match to the Cleveland Browns With eight games decided at the last minute and four in overtime, we had our own version of "Kardiac Kids"

It began in the season opener against Washington Irving. With new coach Bul Lawson and two returning veterans, the Bears ability was unknown

After impressive play by the starters Ray Prudnick, Mark Oliver Rick Jones, Dave Ritchie and Rick Toothman, the hoopsters could not hold on and lost in overtime 55-54. However, the coach and the players refused to give up even after falling short in the first three contests.

After hours of practice, includng Christmas and New Years days the Bears had seemingly overcome their hard luck, by winning the next three. Then disaster struck when the next three games were lost by a total of six points. Although they never gave up, the Bears continued to be diseased with the last second

While sitting in the bleachers of East-West Stadium, one might carch a glimpse of a blue and white uniform streaking along the track. At the same time a trained eye could carch a glimpse of another color — green This green depicted the youthfulness of the boys' and girls track teams.

Both teams opened the season with respectable meet finishes. The boys placed third against North Marion, while the girls came in second to Buckhannon According to Coach Tom Dragich, Pat Davis and Eric Price made top showings in the meet. At the same time, the girls won the 400- and 800-meter relays, Robin Cook finished first in the

The team started the season by finishing third at the Willamstown Invitational Tournament. Overall, they ended the day with six wins and two ties led by the combined etforts of Frank and Dale Dzielski, who each won three games and tied one. Dan Morgan and Ed Hanway In towed the two by each withing three games and losing one, helping to give the squad a solid third place.

Following their show at Williamstown, the crew came home and hosted the Fairmont Senior High Winter Invitational Tournament. The Bears bounced back by dominating the play with an unmarked 600 win. Jeff Schrader led the team by going undefeated, but receiving second place individually by tiebreak points. Schrader was followed closely by Hanway who copped a third place finish. In addition to the two veterans, Maggie Enos finished as top female in her division.

The team then traveled to Lewis County finishing third as several members did not compete, because they were in Florida with the band Second-year veteran Enrico Lopez ed the team by winning three of tour matches

No Deposit, No Return: Graduation Garb

This occasion didn't require hours of searching for one particular gown or that special top hat to be worn to the prom. Instead, it called for a uniform — cap and gown — which didn't compare to the cost or even the look of promoutfus

In an extended homeroom period March 5 semors measured head sizes with a piece of tape and filled out forms as the ritual of ordering the traditional graduation garb

"We weren't even told how much the outfits cost I guess we were expected to buy them no matter what the expense," complained Brenda Wolfe, concerning the ordering procedure

When the outfits arrived a few days prior to graduation, students paid the fee asked by the Collegiate Cap and Gown Company who serviced the school In keeping with the tradition and signifying the school colors, female students ordered white gowns with white hats, while male students ordered blue

I like the new gowns. They are made up of a disposable material. I would like to keep my gown for memories in the future." explained Anita Layman

In the older days, students rented their graduation outfits for that one evening, and returned them the following afternoon. Since times have changed, students keep their cap and gown as a keepsake

Although graduation wasn't compared to prom, it did require a special outfit. This garment didn't cost an arm and a leg, but it brought back special memories

A Spooky Event Not For Kids Only

The night had just settled in. The sky grew dark and howling winds crackled through the dead trees. Sound like the scene for a 1930's Bela Lugosi horror flick? This was the atmosphere provided Oct. 31, Hallow's Eve to wandering trick-or-treaters.

Even after the age of 12, people still celebrated the event of Halloween. There were still ghost hunts, bobbing for apples and visiting haunted houses for those too "old to trick-or-treat. These activities kept most students quite busy for the spooky night.

Halloween gave kids a chance to be dramatically creative," remarked Mimi Wallman

During school hours, East-West week provided the students with "Scare the Bees" day, when they dressed in ugly masks to, hopefully, scare the bees. Thus activity began the school s Halloween spirit

Lisa Sprouse commented, "Scare the bees" day provided to with a break from the regular routine

Although the settings of this particular evening might have startled people of all ages, Hallow's Eve stall provided spooky activities from day to night

DURING DISTRIBLTING CAMPAIGN CARDS. Dana Brafore enjoys working for her favorate candidate

From Peanut Farmer To Jelly Bean Man

Even though the "peanut farmer or the "Jelly bean Lover" didn't campaign in the "Friendly City," students became active supporting the political candidate of their choice

Although students didn't work for Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan, they did however for their parents or family relatives. "When my mother, Cecily McAteer Enos, ran for county clerk, she was just repeating what my grandfather, Marshall MaAteer, had done There has always been sumeone in our family running for an office and it wouldn't be surprising if the same thing happened to me. Politics are in my family's blood," expressed Maggie Enos

Lori Pulice also worked the polls for her father Sam. Politics seemed to run in their family as well. Pulice ran for magistrate Lori Pulice explains, "I liked when Dad ran for magistrate. We met a lot of people and also got to travel. The people were nice and helped my parents, tince this was their first year in politics."

Passing out hats, cards, combs, matches, banners and bumper stickers provided students the opportunity of meeting new people and helping the political candidates. All surrounding schools served as posts where area residents cast their votes. During the election, students volunteered their time and services to help out candidates at the polls

It didn't matter who the political candidate was, students enjoyed passing out hats and banners while meeting people and donating their time.

Working for the Extras In the After-Hours

Ever tried going to school and holding down a part-time job in the process? It wasn't a bed of roses, but when payday arrived, students loved it

"I enjoyed working because of the people I worked uith It wasn't something that I dreaded doing because I had a good time and I also earned money," remarked Wendy Krusely, who worked at Kentucky Fried Chicken

It all started during the summer and Christmas breaks when many students acquired jobs for extra money. When it came to buying a bathing suit or Christmas presens, those extra bucks came in hands

Positions varied from a waitress at Shonev's to a cashier at Stone and Thomas and from a typist to a cook at McDonaids. Most of the fast foods

IN BETWEEN CLASSES, Dave Calabrase and Joyce Marika exchange a minute of chatting about the styles that are in and out and how they change so often Joyce reflects the trends by wearing a pleated skirt with knee socks, while Dave wears khaki pants with a sweater and a button-down collared skirt.

A Traditional Appearance In a Classic Sense

As with any other year, the fads came in like a lion and vanished like a lamb. Maybe it was the monogrammed sweaters, the alligator prints or the colorful bows

The Izod craze, which became so popular in such a short time, stretched as far as alligator shirts, sweaters, pants and even alligator socks, "I think as soon as a couple of kids started baying them, they were noticed by everyone," remarked Mary Beth Muto

Other fashions included docksider shoes, rurtlenecks with various prints, add-a-head necklaces, button-down collar oxford shirts and plaid, pleated skirts

They weren't here in person, but Jordache, Calvin Klein, Gioria Vanderbilt and many other brand names gave students a chance to wear labeled fashion jeans. Costs ranged anywhere between $20 and $50 depending on the name Al though Levi's and Wranglers weren't considered high fashion, students enjoyed their comfortable look. "I feel Levis are relaxing to wear and they look good," remarked Deneen Aversa

As the coldness started setting in, students had to choose their fashions in winter coats Rabbit fors and lambs wool became the fashions for the winter snow. The colors which depended on the individual were black, brown, white and mixed

The fashions started out with a roar when students checked out the new fashions that appealed to everyone

Angie Sergent explained her ideas about fash ion. "I looked for something comfortable and made well. The designer shirts or sweaters looked a bit river

Shocked by the unbelievable prices, students had to think twice about keeping up with the fads. People needed to go a little further than Murphy's to purchase these fashions. Stone and Thomas, Pettreys, Chess King and Jones seemed to be the places that kept the fashion-minded students in style.

After the high sales of Izod fashions, oxford shirts and pleated skirts, the fads were all out in the open. However, it wasn't long after the fashion came in like a lion that they faded like a amb

Out of the Ordinary Into Self-Expression

We were at a party, his ear lobe fell in the deep, someone reached in and grabbed it. It was a Rock Lobster

The lyncs to the B-52's "Rock Lobster" may not go down in history as noteable literature of the '80s, but they made a splash in the New Wave' of punk which spread across the country

Students had a chance to express their feelings in punk. February 17 was set aside for everyone to dress up in punk. Everything from dog collars to dyed hair was revealed. "Whip it" by the group Devo was just one of several punk tunes. However, punk did not dominate the record market

Maries Minico explained her feelings on punk as a "way that people can express their individuality" The punk style originated in England as an escape from the reality of society with the music of the Sex Pistols and the Tubes. The American New Wave' however was not as dramatic and effective as Europe's, mainly because it was used as entertainment here, but the English took it more senously

Closer to home, Morgantown was the place to go for students, to "Punk Out" at Ziegfeld's on Brockway Avenue. Punk dancing gave students a chance to move freely unlike confiring disco steps

Space outfits, baggie pants, fishnet hose, along with the B-52's and Ziegfeld's made up the New Wave' punk. The punk style which originated in England was shown to be a style out of the ordinary

WHILE SHOWING THEIR LOYALTY to the B-52's, Jill Tracy Koppel and Bob Burns discuss the music of the New Wave

Lines of Red and White: Stripes for Caring

Maybe it was the experience with other people, but no matter the reason, students contributed their time to those in need

Even though most jobs required experience and persons age 16 and older, being a candy-striper had limited restrictions. To be a candy-striper, students were invited to attend a meeting in the old cafeteria at Fairmont General Hospital. There they filled out a form and became a candy-scriper

Strolling down the corridors of the hospital, the volunteers dressed in red and white uniforms to brighten the days of those who were ill. To give the staff extra time with the patients, they did 'little things' that meant a great deal

"I liked to assist the community and help those in need explained Kelli Kerns

Students between the age of 14 and 18, could obtain the position of candy-stripers. Although the job didn't pay, it gave experience to further careers. The working hours consisted of 4 - 6 p.m. and 9-11 p.m. In one shift, they delivered and picked up dinner trays, while the other, they sold candy

Helping those in need and making patients smile — the job of candy-stripers, who provided hospitals with a little more than hired help

Is It Really Ending Or Just Beginning

Harvard, Radcliffe, Princeton, Marshall, Cornell, West Virginia University, and Fairmont State College — choosing a college was like finding a needle in a haystack

"Leaving high school brought both joy and sorrow, the joy of graduating and the sorrow of leaving my friends," ternacked Barbara Hill

When students reached their senior year many heaved a sigh of relief. Twelve years of schooling were finally over, but was it the end?

As their last year concluded, seniors became frantic with the "big" decision of choosing a college

Before sending applications to all the different colleges, the upperclassmen had to take the ACT and SAT tests. These tests were given four times throughout the year. Scores were then sent to colleges of the student's choice

Student's obtained information on colleges from College Day, held Oct. 28 and through the mail Reasons given for choosing a certain college included going with friends, obtaining a college scholarship from an academic-emphasized college, or attaining a good degree

"I feel if I plan to go anywhere in life, it is necessary to go on to college or some type of school," explained Lori Flowers.

Even though 12 years of schooling were over, seniors prepared themselves for a future of even more decisions

WHILE DISCUSSING HER FLTURE PLANS. Time Hanning talks to Mr. Muto about alternatives of colleges to attend and choices of college programs.

The Next Best Thing To a Letterman Jacket

To receive a letterman jacket one must have achieved a certain number of credits in a sport or athletic event. Without participating in a sport a person could still have displayed his pride and revealed what school he was from

In their junior year, students purchased and received their class rings. This provided an opportunity for students to get a reminder of their high school years. Beyond Captain Kangaroo To the Dancing Bears

Remember those chathood days when you just had to catch "Captain Kangaroo" before rushing off to school? And when you tried to follow the soft shoe steps of the Dancing Bears? Well, now the Dancing Bear has grown up and that soft shoe has evolved into a kickline

The Dancing Bears, under the direction of Jane Hall, speech teacher, added a little spark to football and basketball games and thuses 'When a few girls came to me and said they wanted to dance, lagreed to set up a new organization," stated Mrs. Hall. "Also the development of the Dancing Bears gave the girls the chance to get involved it school activities

And this group did just that — it got thirteen different girls involved. Twenty-six girls were judged, and those chosen to dance were Susan Cronin (head). Meianie Boggs, Kari Carlson Kim Davidson, Ana Delapas, Laura Domico Vanessa Goode, Robin Horton and Sherry Kronjaeger

I feel that it is a great opportunity for girls who in not interested in other spirit organizations to get a olved and support the Polar Bears," expressed Kati Carison, when she was asked how she felt about the origin of the Dancing Bears, "I love it and only wish it could have been organized several years ago. I hope it becomes a tradition here

Over the years opportunity to participate in school activities has become greater, and the Dancing Bears have added to the list

Friendly People Make Moving Easier

I felt like I was always on vacation even though I was going to school!" Tracey Harland, transfer student from Manchester, England, came to Fairmont because her father worked at a mining company

The things I liked best were the drive-ins which we didn't have in England, and meeting new people—expressed Harland. She admitted she liked all the people she met; although, she still had not quite adjusted

Money didn't pose a problem for Harland because items were much more expensive in England than here, and the English pound was equal to $7%

I felt he I had more money and could buy much more than before revealed Hatland

Among other changes, she noticed differ ences in the school system, clothing styles, cl the discipline and way of life. The British system was similar to the schedule of American colleges. Harland felt the discipline was much or the in the schools there than it was here. She added that the way of life was much different and some clothing styles such as dress pants and prepipants were indicated in England. Harland also noted that climate time was like a November day in West Virginia. A hot English day was invitning over 60 degrees.

Mom, can I have the car tonight? It's my turn, and I know how much you hate chauffering me around

To obtain the car, reenagers had to use this line and others like it. Even before asking for the car, a license was needed to drive

Getting a license wasn't easy. First, a person had to be 16 years of age. Second, they had to take a two-part test. This test consisted of a written examination and a driving sequence. Third, a person had to show a state trooper that he could handle the car.

I was scared, nervous and couldn't think There were many questions that were hard to answer. I tried to pick the best choice," explained Jim Kimbrough

Coming To School Seemed Relatively Easy

For most students leaving their parents at 7 a.m. meant not seeing them again until 3 p.m. But for Shelly Deligarti, Rocky Delorenzo Mary Beth and Jennifer Muto, going to the same school with reaching fathers meant never having to say goodbye

Other students in this situation were Scott and David Kendrick with Aunt Jo and Uncle B., Lawson, Mary and Chris Sansalone with Aunt Angie Savereno; Mike Biafore with Uncle Frank DiMaria and B.II and Bob Burns with sister Kathy Jacquez

Some students feit having their relatives at school was a substitution for their parents

I guess it never burts to be close to your teacher
It seasy for my parents to keep an eye on me here when my aunt and uncle are around I have to control myself," explained Dave Kendrick

On the other hand, most students felt thes enjoyed their relatives being here

The sports world had Doctor J and Magic Johnson, Hollywood claimed Old Blue Eves and The Duke. Around campus Tadpole, H Bomb Chewey and Stonewall were familiar characters

People obtained nicknames in various ways and from different people such as from parents or peers, from an event or famous person in their life or just as a shortened version of their original name.

Reasons that parents nicknamed their kids might be that another child couldn't pronounce their name or the adult preferred the nickname over the real name.

A popular way to get a nickname was from fellow peers. A person's friend much have given them a nickname because of something toes looked like or how they acted

Someone started calling me Chewey and is just caught on Now almost everyone calls me that, confessed Scott Oliver

Being named after a famous person is also another way to get a different name, along with using a shortened version of the name. An example of a famous nickname was the one obtained by James Jackson, otherwise known as Stonewall, and a shortened name was Mo for Monica of Olive for Oliver

Students took various state, county and nationally-sponsored tests. The State-County Test was a test given to all freshmen and juniors. It determined the progression of students and how well the local education program was keeping up with the test of the nation

Tests that offered scholarships were the PSAT or National Ment Qualifying Test and the National Math Test. These have optional tests. The PSAT was taken by juniors for qualification and sophomores just for practice

No matter which one was taken, all the tests displayed some form of result and measured different degrees of skills.

THE FIRST STEP IN STUFFING A BIRD is war of chest. Cantrocca uses a razor blade to make the same

THE BIRD MUST BE CLEANED COMPLETELY IN craping the insides from the chest cavity

Stuffing the Right Kind of Bird

Stuffing a turkey comes about twice a year for most people, usually at Thanksgiving and then at Christmas. However, for Todd Cianfrocca, stuffing birds, deer and other animals is a pastime

"I first got interested in this hobby when I read about it in a hunting magazine. I sent away for the instructions, completed them and received my license," explained Cianfrocca

After enrolling in the course, the sophomore had to experiment on small animals. Cianfrocca found that birds were the best for the experi-

"I had to shoot birds in order to acquire subjects to stuff," stated Cianfrocca

To have the stuffing evaluated, a picture was taken and sent to the company, who either approved or disapproved the 10b

'All of the animals that I stuffed were approved, so I received my license for taxidermy," Cianfrocca

CIANTROCCA fills the inside of the subject with a cotton like substance to maintain the shape of the bird said. "Although I have stuffed birds, I have not bad a chance to work on deer or any other hunted

Stuffing animals may seem unusual to most people, but to Todd Cianfrocca taxidermy is a worthwhile hobby. Cianfrocca, who is also a hunter, hopes to one day stuff his own animals and save himself money. But who knows, one day he may be stuffing other people's animals for profit

At Home

A few years ago, the only movie that was ever viewed in a house was either a home movie or a movie on television. However, for people of the 80s, advancement in television has made it possible for anyone with the proper equipment to bring motion pictures into their living rooms.

The first type of movies was recorded on video tapes and costs approximately $900-$1,000 but as production increased, the price was reduced to about $400-$500. After the video tape player came into existence, companies came out with a video cassette player. The idea was to build something more compact. For some people watching TV at home was fun, but after awhite, it became boring

At first, our tape player was great, but then is became just another thing in the bouse," explained Scott Kendrick

Lisa Washenitz added, "Everyone in our family mied to use the video player the day we got it, but then it became an old toy

Whether or not a video tape player was in a house may not have made a difference because one had to pay to see the movie, even if one went to a local theater. Therefore, a video tape player was inore convenient.

A Super Weekend In New Orleans

Going to parties before the Super Bowl and watching the game on television was exciting for most Americans, but there were a few people who were lucky enough to see the game in New Orleans.

One of these persons was David Stingo, who went because he met Al Davis, owner of the Oakland Raiders team. Davis gave him a ticket on the 50-yard line. But this wasn't all he received; he also got to meet some of the players

"It was great. I couldn't believe this was happening to me, "announced Stingo. "I met Al Davis when I was staying at the same botel. I van a few errands for the team, also. To show his appreciation, he gave me the ticket. No one else in my family went," declared Stingo

Stingo watched the Oakland Raiders defeat the Philadelphia Eagles in the 1980 Super Bowl. He had to travel by plane to New Orleans to watch the game

Most people could only dream of this experience, but for Stingo it was a dream come true

Teachers Aren't Teachers After an Eight-Hour Job

Giving tests, lecturing new lessons, assigning homework and discussing projects gave people a full time schedule. Teachers who kept that eighthour job had time for other activities.

Joe Cavalser explained his extracurricular activities. "I enjoyed small woodworking projects in my garage workshop. This activity was so removed from my school duties that it gave me a refreshing change in a more organized method of spending my free time, I was active in the Rivesville Lions Club."

"After school during the months of September and October, I had football practice until dark, then I went home, are dinner, watched the news, read the paper and went to bed," tematked Anthony Delligatti

A wrestling and freshman football coach, Joe Naternicola still found time to do extra activities. "After school and during the summer, I had a second job as a stone mason. I worked enough every pring and summer to keep me very busy," expressed Naternicola

He Keeps the Teams Right on Schedule

If not for this man, there would have been no transportation to away games, no referees, not even any tickets to get into athletic contests. In his first year as athletic director, Bill Reppert directed sports programs

Booking transportation for field trips and scheduling all sports contests, as well as teaching three American Studies classes kept Reppert quite busy

This job was very time consuming with all the school activities and teaching American Studies," expained Reppett

Athletic directors were appointed in the AAA high schools of Marion County to relieve administrators and coaches of detailed organization duties. This made it possible for principals and coaches to devote all their efforts to their other responsibilities

Reppert was one of several who applied for the position. He was selected by the Manon County Board of Education because of his expenence at Fairmont Senior as head basketball and golf coach and faculty member

Reppert added that he hoped the basic program he established will prove beneficial to the school. After all the demands and tight scheduling it required, this job seemed satisfying in every respect for Reppert WITH A DESK IN THE MAIN OFFICE, Bill Reppert has a chance to work on achietic activities and assist students with personal needs

Service Personnel Work Appeals to Senses

The sweet aroma of fresh baked bread permeated the walkways. The scent of newly cut grass could be smelled all over the campus. The strong, medicinal odor of Mr. Kleen filled the hatlways. Anyone with a good nose realized that to keep a school in prime operating condition was a test to one's senses.

Specializing in smell and taste were the four cooks — Pattie Helmick, Betty Lou Skarzinski, Juanita Straight and Ruth E. Swisher, who began at 6 a.m. preparing two lunches Ordering food, making up menus, cleaning the ovens, scrubbing the floor and, of course, serving lunches kept the cooks busy

In order to keep up to date on costs, the cooks kept a workbook stating the money spent and the food wasted daily. The menus were made one month in advance and were recorded in the workbook.

I really liked working with the students and the teachers," remarked Betty Lou Skarzinski

Lunches served at 11:04 a.m. and 12:06 p.m. kept the four cooks on their feet. When students started pushing their way through the line, the cooks knew they should have the lunch ready

Arriving at 6:30 a.m., the janitors began their daily routine of changing lights, painting, cleaning restrooms, dusting, waxing floors, emptying garbage cans and mowing grass. The seven people who were responsible for keeping the campus tidy were George Bingamon, Carolyn Dean, Josephine Findo, Woodrow Holt, Don Minor Emma Mutdock and Tom Loss

Bingamon explained his job, "I fixed lights and ubatever else needed done

Whatever the job may have been, the jamitors seemed to fix it, while the cooks worked to view the hunger pains of the students and teachers

BESIDES SERVING LUNCH Betry Skarzinski and the oth er cooks are responsible for making up the menus

Prom queens, ballrooms, punch bowls, bands, long areas es, picnics, tuxes, and money raising How long has all this been going on?

The annual event of a Junior-Senior Prom began in 1951 when the junior class and the yearbook staff sponsored a dance to honor the seniors Queen Betty Lee and five princesses made up the first court

By 1962, the court size was increased to seven with Linda Orr Morgan, currently an Eng I sh teacher, reigning as queen Jo Festz, now English teacher Jo Lawson, was prom queen in 1965

Although the names, dates and court sizes have changed over the last 30 years, the tradition of the Junior-Senior Prom WHILE SWAYING TO THE MI SIC, comes to life every spring.

What About The Opposite Sex?

If you wanted to compete at a state of poste sex of sports, you couldn't join the football team, the basketball team, or even the track team; but, you could take co-educational gym. In 1977 the Federal Regulations stipulative member stated that no public classroom should be segregated, including physical education.

From its start, co-ed gym received mixed emotions from both students and teachers. "I liked it," commented Sonja Groves, "because we seemed to get to do more things than we originally would Bob DeLorenzo, who has taught integrated physical education from the start, added, "It has its advantages and disad vantages. I liked the fact that the

Why Are English Classes Phased?

American Literature, English I iterature. Humanities. Gram mar and Shakespeare are all a part of the phased English system.

In 1971, the English Depart ment decided to try a new program called phasing, which was started in 1970 as a pilot program at East Fairmont High School. The program was de signed to give students a broader understanding of English by getting away from the traditional grammar classes. Instead, the phasing program allowed students to gain an understanding of all aspects of English, white working at their own page

How Long Has Lincoln Been Around?

As the 16th president, he freed the slaves and gave a famous address at Gettysburg. As a young man, he split logs in a single blow. But as a 6 feet, four inch statue, he was merely a meeting place and decoration for the main hall.

Donated by the graduating Class of 1932, the white plaster statue of Abraham Lincoln has become a symbol of the school Visitors were greeted by it and yearbook staffs have even used his image to decorate the book cover

Like any Polar Bear fan, Lincoln was donned in blue and white and decorated with signs to help promote school spirit in

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S SPIRIT seems to rise as if looking back on victoties of the past and a hope for continuing the FSH winning tradition all sport seasons

Without Lincoln, the main hall would have looked empty, because he stood out more than anything else in the hallway," voiced Connie Vigles. "He was just a welcome sight

How Did Hi-Life Come About?

Lucille Hire had no idea that when she suggested the name Hi-Life' for the school newspaper that the publication would undergo various transformations

In October 1920, interest in starting a school newspaper began. A contest was held and a prize was offered to the person whose name was selected. While only a junior, Hite's suggestion of "H.-L.fe' was chosen.

Lawrence Wallman was elect ed editor-in-chief and the first issue was distributed in October 1921

For years the 11 inches by 17 inches tabloid paper was pubiished by-weekly. As paper prices soared an inflation skyrocketed. Hi-Life was limited to monthly publication.

In spring 1979, Hi-Life was changed to a newsmagazine With an emphasis in feature stones, the 8½ inches by 11 inches newsmagazine was published bimonthly

Publications adviser Ron Boram explained that the shift of student interest toward featurized events was primarily the reason for the change in format

In its first full year as a newsmagazine, Hi-Life was named a Medalist" publication, the highest award bestowed by the Columbia University Scholastic Press Association in New York City. It also received an "All-West Virginia" rating by the W.Va. Scholastic Press Association.

How Was Maple Leaves Named?

Faces may have changed but the names remain the same. Years from now, when you're in the mood to reminisce or just tor a good laugh, take out your old high school yearbook

Maple Leaves had its start in 8 by the junior class. The name originated from the maple trees planted in front of the school

In the beginning, the majority of the book was made up of advertisements and group pic tures. The cover consisted of a prown paper covering that bound the book together

Just as the faces change and the names remain the same, so it is with Maple Leaves. The covers change from year to year but the name remains the same

When Was the Polar Bear Adopted?

Who are, who are we? Say we are, we are the Polar Bears

Poiar Bears?" As one listens to this familiar cheer, a question crosses their mind again - a question that probably crosses every student's mind at least once during their four high school years at Fairmont Semon Why is the school mascot a Poar Bear

Fairmont Senior wasn't always the Polar Bears. The school colors were adopted in 1907 when Frank Ice began as athletic coach. Since Ice coached all of the sports, (football, basketball, baseball), the teams became known as the Icemen, because they were Ice's

That name remained for 19 years. In January 1926, "Biz Dawson came to Fairmont High to coach the football team

Fairmont High students were then faced with a big problem They would have to find a new mascot because the football team would no longer be Ice's men. Several suggestions were made including the Eagles, Ti-
